The Special
Education
Process

This workshop is sponsored by our Center for Family Leadership through the generous support of the Harriet P. Irsay Endowment Fund.

Do You Know Your Family's Rights?

This educational workshop session is designed to help you understand Indiana's special education law, how the special education process works, your role as a parent, and your right to participate in decisions made about your child's education. Presented by IN*SOURCE, you will also learn the basics about Article 7 and help you can apply it to your family's situation—including the referral and evaluation process, why the individualized education plan is important, your child's placement and the dispute resolution process.

About IN*SOURCE

In 1975, a group of parents in South Bend came together primarily because they wanted to understand what "going to school" would mean for their children with disabilities. The group of parents worked with their local schools to understand the requirements of a new law that said that children with disabilities, as all other children, are entitled to a free appropriate public education.

The mission of IN*SOURCE is to provide parents, families, individuals and service providers in the state of Indiana the information and training necessary to help assure effective educational programs and appropriate services for individuals with disabilities.
